James Freeman Launches Brand New Education Consultancy Organisation

Education manager and sought-after teacher trainer James Freeman launches his brand new venture – an education consultancy organisation.

United by Learning brings together the very best professionals from the education sector who, collectively, seek to support learning establishments across the world. This is done through a variety of programmes and services which are specifically tailor-made to target English language teachers and learners.

“Education is constantly evolving and in 2020 we have seen some extreme changes come into effect. Myself and the team are passionate about inspiring teachers with new ideas on how to approach their careers and connect with learners through innovation and meaningful content,” says Freeman, Founder and CEO.

The organisation will offer a variety of services ranging from teacher training, curriculum planning and seminars to English language programmes, language placement testing and international exam preparation.

For education institutions interested, James says: “It’s a very simple process. Contact us and let us know the area of training or service you need. We listen, put together a proposal, present the project and everyone is ready to start!”

James has a background in English Language Teaching (ELT) which spans across three continents (Europe, Asia and South America). He was regional Manager for Cambridge University Press in Ecuador and is a speaking examiner for Cambridge Assessment English. Currently, he trains teachers on methodology and teaches English as a Foreign Language (Pre-A1 to C2 levels). He is also an ELT conference speaker.
